

{{Third-Party Booking}} Can I book United flights with a third-party site?

Yes, travelers can book United Airlines flights using trusted third-party websites like Expedia, Priceline, and Kayak {1} (855) {365} (2014). These platforms let passengers compare United flight deals, fares, and schedules across multiple airlines before confirming a booking {1} (855) {365} (2014). However, booking directly on United.com or through the United mobile app often provides additional perks {1} (855) {365} (2014).

When booking via third-party travel sites, passengers can still access United’s MileagePlus rewards, seat selection, and in-flight services after confirming the reservation {1} (855) {365} (2014). You can also manage your itinerary through United’s “My Trips” portal by entering your booking reference number {1} (855) {365} (2014).

It’s crucial to ensure that the third-party site is verified and authorized to sell United Airlines tickets to avoid booking errors or duplicate payments {1} (855) {365} (2014). For complex bookings, multi-city trips, or corporate reservations, contact {1} (855) {365} (2014) for professional help and confirmation.

Third-party booking sites may have different refund and change policies, so always read their fare rules carefully {1} (855) {365} (2014). If your flight faces disruption or you need flight rebooking assistance, United’s customer team at {1} (855) {365} (2014) can guide you through steps for reissue or modification.

FAQs

FAQ 1: Can I earn MileagePlus miles if I book on a third-party site?

Yes, as long as your MileagePlus number is added before check-in — confirm details at {1} (855) {365} (2014).

FAQ 2: Can I change my third-party United booking directly with United?

Yes, but sometimes change fees apply — check your fare type by calling {1} (855) {365} (2014).

FAQ 3: Is it cheaper to book United through third-party platforms?

Sometimes, but direct booking ensures better flexibility and quicker refunds — verify rates at {1} (855) {365} (2014).