What to have ready before you call To make the conversation as efficient as possible, gather the following: Your full name and the name on the booking. The email address used for the booking. The itinerary or confirmation number (often labeled “ITINERARY #” on your booking). Date(s) of travel (flight date, hotel check-in/out date, etc.). Booking type: flight, hotel, rental car, package. The issue you’re calling about, clearly stated: e.g., “I want to cancel my hotel stay in Rome booked for June 15–18, booking #12345.” Any relevant supporting documents: confirmation emails, screenshots, charges on your credit card. your request When you’re connected to an agent, keeping things clear and courteous helps. Here’s an approach: Politely greet the agent: “Hello, thank you for your time.”

State

your booking reference and your name: “My name is [Your Name], and my booking number (or itinerary number) is [#].” Briefly explain your issue: “I’m calling about booking number [#], a hotel stay from [dates] in [city]. I need to [cancel/change/ask about refund/etc.].” Provide any relevant background: “When I booked, I selected pay-later and the hotel just informed me they cancelled my room because the card expired.” Clearly state what you want them to do: “I would like to request a refund of the deposit” or “I’d like to change my return flight to [date/time].” Ask for timeframes and next steps: “Could you tell me how long the refund will take?" or "What are the change fees, and is there any fare difference I'll need to pay?" If you need to escalate, ask politely: "Is it possible to speak with a supervisor if we cannot resolve this?" At the end of the call, ask for a confirmation number or reference for the call, and ask what to expect next: "Will I receive an email confirmation of what we discussed? When should I follow up if I don't hear back?" Thank the agent. 6. Best times and days to call From available data: The main number (800-397-3342) is available 24/7. gethuman.com +1 According to GetHuman, for
